

Questions related to Andrew Carnegie's "Gospel of Wealth"

1. According to Carnegie, why do we owe "our wonderful material development" to the "law of competition"? Carnegie also acknowledges there are negative consequences to the "law of competition." What are they?
2. Why is "intense Individualism" better than radical alternatives like socialism, anarchism, or communism?
3. Does Carnegie agree with the idea of estate taxes? Explain.
4. What are the three duties of the wealthy individual?
5. Describe the "best uses to which surplus wealth can be put," first in general terms and then with four examples.
6. Give five examples of the kinds of charity to which Carnegie is opposed.
7. What is the strongest criticism you can think of regarding the "Gospel of Wealth"?